Reset – our life gets cluttered, and we need to clear the clutter to focus on the 4 W’s. Both in attitude and action. Spend some time this week asking yourself these type of questions...

- Is it really important for me to know and relate with Christ in the space of every day?
Am I really a “worship-maker” or am I more like a “worship-faker”?
Do I have desires for Christ in my heart, but the daily motions of my life have crowded Him out?
What steps can I take to worship Christ better?
- What areas of my Walk to I need to focus on right now?
What sinful attitudes or actions have I been ignoring, excusing, feeding?
What immediate actions can I take to cut that off in resurrection power?
- Who am I currently seeking to witness to?
Who might I begin to pursue?
What might that look like?
What bigger scale mission endeavors am I helping and praying for – either in my community or around the world?

How am I experiencing in true measure the “fellowship of Christ’s suffering”?

- Am I helping another Christian mature?
Exactly who and how could I do that?
Am I assisting with the discipleship works of the church in tangible ways?
- What do I need to intentionally “push to the curb”
in my life to make more space for the “surpassing value” and “joy” of these things?

And more than personal introspection and effort along these lines... we ought to be talking these things up when we get together...

- Who are you witnessing to?
- Who are you discipling?
- What area of sin are you seeking to push out of your life right now?
- How are you presently worshipping? What are you thanking God for, praying about, reading in His Word?
