1. God speaks of Leviathan, a marine _____ that Job would be familiar with, to further impress upon Job his own weakness and God's great power.

2. In order to rightly address and understand his trials, Job needed to be convinced of his own _____.

a. The inability to subdue or tame Leviathan is an example of man's basic inability to _____ with God about his circumstances.

b. Conscious _____ to the Lord is of foundational importance when walking through trials.

3. In order to rightly address and understand his trials, Job needed to be convinced of the power and _____ of God.

a. God is completely sovereign and independent; He _____ on nothing and no one for anything.

b. God is the rightful Lord and owner of _____ things, therefore He is indebted to no one.

c. The overwhelming power and strength of Leviathan is a vivid illustration of the almighty power and strength of _____.

"If the inferior creatures that are put under the feet of man, and over whom He has dominion, keep us in awe thus, how _____ must the majesty of our great Lord be, who has a sovereign dominion over us and against whom man has been so long in rebellion."

- Matthew Henry

d. It is this great divide between man's sin infected weakness and God's divine majesty that presses on us the need for a _____.

"(God the Son) is, and has been in _____ age, the Redeemer out of every distress, the Guardian and Protector of His people, and their Deliverer both from temporal distress and from that everlasting woe of which the former is the figure and type." - William Henry Green
