

Discerning Times: This Isn't Happening, Right?

I'll keep this one brief since the topic is not uplifting. There's literally too much going on these days to highlight everything. I'll deal with two things; first, the abortion issue related to side effects of the CV-19 vaccine, and second, they've begun seeking ways to make "meat" from human tissue

Side Effects of CV-19 Vax May include Miscarriages

This is frightening for any mother to be who believes that receiving the CV-19 vaccination is a good thing for either her or her unborn baby. As of March 3, 2021, there were at least 34 cases of spontaneous miscarriages occurring in pregnant women who received the CV-19. Of course, the tragic part of all this is that science is seemingly unconcerned about these deaths because we are constantly being told that the CV-19 vaccination will allow society to return to "normal."

I've watched videos of healthcare workers receiving the vax and talking about it during a press conference only to watch the nurse pass out a few moments later. After waking, she affirmed that it was weird but she's still glad she took the vaccination. I've seen images and videos of pregnant nurses receiving the vaccination out of a concern to "keep my baby safe," yet, the ridiculous part of this is that, as I've stated before, the mRNA component of the vaccine has never before been used in any vaccine for human beings.

So what's next? Well, it appears that Johnson & Johnson has answered that question for us. The very same company that for years apparently had asbestos in their baby formula, has now stepped up to the plate to say they have plans to begin "testing" the CV-19 vaccination (which apparently only requires one shot, not two as Pfizer and BioNTech vaccinations), on infants which includes newborns.

The disgusting thing here is the fact that the while the FDA did provide a go-ahead for using the CV-19 vax, they did so as an emergency use only. That hasn't seemed to stop Johnson & Johnson from wanting to try things out on newborns and infants in general. This is in spite of the actual fact that "...COVID poses virtually no risk to healthy children."

According to the linked article, J&J is planning on giving the vax to newborns, infants, pregnant women and those with immune-compromised systems. My questions is why? What do they hope to gain from this? It can only be two options. They either want a huge payout if their vaccine seems to work or the powers that be behind Big Pharma aren't concerned about any lives lost through the process (and might even be crossing their fingers for it!), and quite possibly both.

If we already know that approximately 3 dozen women have experienced miscarriages, does this not provide enough to cause people to say, "Hey wait a minute, maybe we need to dial this back, do more study and change something about the vaccine." Seems like a good thing to do, but gosh, I'm not a scientist.

I'd like to remind everyone who reads this, we know that Corona-virus 19 has a survivability rate of 99.7% if you are not in the group that is most affected by it (the elderly and those with compromised immune systems). As we go down the list to the youngest among society, they pose almost ZERO risk of contracting the virus! Yet, they are moving ahead with this stupidity to ensure seemingly that unborn children as well as those born will be drastically affected by the vaccination or killed by it. Does this seem to be legitimate science to you?

Meat from Human Tissue

If this wasn't enough, "science" is now in the process of creating salami from human tissue. I'm sorry, what? Yes, they are essentially involved in scientific cannibalism and there is no other word for it.

A sample of tissue containing myosatellite cells (the type of cells that help repair and regrow damaged muscle) will be taken from a person during a biopsy. Those cells are multiplied in a lab using a medium that acts as an artificial blood to grow muscle. Once the cells are mature enough, they will be ground and mixed with different kinds of meat, spices, fats and oils for flavor using one of the company's "time-honored recipes for the creation of fine cured meats." It will then be stuffed into casings, seasoned again then dry aged and cured before packaging for distribution.

Doesn't that sound delicious? This is all from a new startup company called BiteLab. The Bible speaks of times when people resorted to cannibalism and it is never a good thing. Will this occur in the future? It is happening right now.

Why are they doing this? It all falls under the heading of "climate change." The company believes that producing "meat" this way will help save the environment.

The company outlines how this type of test-tube meat would eliminate environmental and ethical concerns associated with livestock production, claiming its celebrity meat production would require less than 1% of the land used in traditional farming. The site also notes, the lab meats will not be affected by growth hormones or come into contact with any pesticides or chemicals. And as far as the celebrity angle, BiteLabs is hoping they can use celebrities to warm people up to the idea of consuming the meat.

Yes, they want Hollywood celebrities to join them in donating cells so the company can produce "meat." So I guess it's not enough to worship celebrities. Soon, you'll be able to eat them.

BiteLabs has sample celebrity meat descriptions on its website written by BiteLabs representative Kevin and food designers on the BiteLab team. There are sample descriptions for James Franco, Kanye West, Jennifer Lawrence and Ellen DeGeneres. None of these celebrities are actually affiliated with the company.

In case you're wondering, DeGeneres' salami is described as "black pepper and garlic with a playful kick of mustard give the Ellen salami a highly approachable and well-rounded flavor." The description notes DeGeneres' meat would be blended with ostrich and finished with a hint of brandy and shallots.

No one sees a problem with this? I recall the movie "Soylent Green" starring Charlton Heston and Edward G. Robinson as I'm sure you do as well. Turns out, the soylent green pill that everyone was eating to stay alive was "people." When a person died either voluntarily through suicide or simply died, their bodies were trucked to plants where they were literally turned into food for society since the world was so grossly overpopulated in that movie. For the time of its filming and production, they did a really good job on that movie. But it was science fiction! However, what was science fiction is now becoming reality!

They are killing unborn children at the rate of millions per year. That isn't enough though and they want to kill more of them and want it to be seen as "keeping moms and babies safe" even if/when those moms lose their unborn children to some aspect of the CV-19 vaccine.

Moreover, they are ramping up ways to turn human beings into meats that society would eat daily. With the proliferation of "plant-based meats" (an oxymoron to be sure), filling the refrigerated sections of stores (I cannot believe just how many different brands and options there are for plant-based "meats"), and now the coming reality of creating meats from human cells, who among us would still believe we are not in the very last portion of the Last Days prior to the start of the coming Tribulation period?

Good Lord, I'm not sure how much more Christians we have to put up with and witness in society, but it absolutely appears that the Left has gone crazy and is infested with demons. All of this is the harbinger of what is to come.

Folks, if you are not reading His Word daily, you need to be. I'm not talking about simply reading it to "check" it off. I'm talking about reading, meditating, absorbing it. This is the only way that I'm aware of that we can be daily "washed" with His Word. It doesn't happen any other way that I know of.

These are evil days. I don't even feel like highlighting the coming "Equality Act" that is most likely going to be passed by our Democrat-controlled Congress. Know that the days are going to become more evil. His Word protects and keeps and shines the light of wisdom and discernment in us as the Holy Spirit seeks to apply it to our lives.

Run to Him!
