“His desire to be ‘useful’ to souls, to achieve the holy success of serving Christ, to win a sparkling crown to lay at His feet, breathes and burns from first to last.”

- Alexander Grosart, 1866

“As a writer, Brooks scatters stars with both his hands. He has dust of gold: in his storehouse are all manner of precious stones. Genius is always marvelous, but when sanctified it is matchless.”

- Charles Spurgeon, 1860
