Tuning Our Conscience
for the Gospel

The conscience is our inner sense of right and wrong

A group of people are gathered around a dark, textured table. Several hands are visible, some holding small white bowls. The scene suggests a collaborative activity or training session. The text is overlaid in white, with 'lifelong process' in a larger, bold font.

Training our conscience is a lifelong process

Paul adapted
his behavior
and mindset

The text 'Paul makes an important disclaimer' is overlaid in white, bold, sans-serif font across the center of the image.

Paul makes an important
disclaimer

The distinction isn't always as obvious
as we assume

A group of people are gathered around a dark, textured table, holding white coffee cups in a circle. The scene is dimly lit, with a blueish tint. The text is overlaid in white, bold, sans-serif font.

We face
such choices
in America, too

We have work
to do in training
our conscience

A photograph showing a group of people from an overhead perspective, holding hands around a dark, textured table. Two white coffee cups are placed on the table. The scene is dimly lit, with a blueish tint. The text is overlaid in white, with the word 'steamroll' in a bold font.

I'm not suggesting
we steamroll
our conscience

He was firmly but lovingly opposed
to sinful behavior

Use our liberty to serve others with and for the gospel
