Pathologist Kevin Homer tested himself for antibodies after receiving both CV injections. He tested negative for antibodies to CV-19 less than five months after the injections.

My story is another example of the folly of making universal vaccination the primary objective of the pandemic response. Vaccine mandates by restaurants, employers, airlines, colleges, and entertainment venues are based on the flawed assumption that vaccinated people are safe, clean, and not dangerous to others. There is undeniable evidence that breakthrough infections occur, that the vaccinated can spread the disease, and that vaccinated individuals can die of the disease. It's becoming clear that eradication is no longer possible.

There is also mounting evidence that vaccines are associated with significant side effects that affect the health and well-being of individuals. Expect more evidence to emerge. We do not yet know the whole story.

I'm sure you've heard by now that Biden has mandated sweeping new CV-19 rules for businesses of 100 or more employees. It comes down to all employees will need the CV jab OR those who do not receive it must submit to a test weekly. Any company that does not comply will be fined $14,000.

I'm not sure how this will be enforced. I am however, certain that Biden has overstepped his authority as president. But he's not the first one and it's been going on too long. The president has the power to mandate (issue executive orders) to any and all federal agencies. He does not have the authority to issue mandates or EOs to private companies, regardless of their size. What Biden has done is illegal.

Having said that, I'm wondering how many companies with Leftwing CEOs will comply? My guess is many to most. So even if Biden is proven to be wrong and retracts his mandate, making it more of a "recommendation" for businesses, the CEOs of those companies will essentially carry the baton from Biden.

The other issue I have is that this is essentially the frog in the pot of water that slowly comes to a boil. The frog is unaware of it and literally ends up being cooked alive. If there is no real pushback against Biden's illegal and fascist dictates, I can see several things happening. Several months might go by with many companies of 100+ or more employees and then Biden may offer that "it isn't working" and further restrictive measures will be needed. He may then lower the number to include companies with 50 to 99 employees also having to jump through his hoops. Then, when it is deemed that won't work, it'll go lower still. Eventually, all businesses will be required to comply and then eventually, the "weekly testing option" will be removed.

I doubt if I'm the only one who can see this happening. But the reason this is happening incrementally is to gauge public response to the mandate. If there is a great deal of push-back that will signal to the White House that they've gone too far. If there is relatively little or no push-back, that will tell them they can go further.

See, many businesses that do not have 100 or more employees will feel as though they have escaped the dragnet Biden has thrown out there. Instead of standing in solidarity with businesses with 100+ employees, smaller business owners may simply breathe a sigh of relief and get on with life and work...until things begin to tighten up for the smaller businesses and they feel the pinch. They may want to at that point start resisting but it'll be late in the game for that.

I can tell you that the powers that be have been studying human nature for generations. In fact, Satan has been watching human beings since before the fall of humanity. While we do not know how long between the time God finished His Creation and Eve and Adam fell, we do know that

(Below is the response to a Canadian who allegedly emailed Dr Malthouse asking about v exemptions and this was his response...)

Hello,

I am not taking patients and, in fact, I am on sabbatical and spending all my time fighting the covid pandemic propaganda and pseudo vaccination issue, i.e. the march to global tyranny.

BC (British Columbia - ed), ferries will almost certainly try to mandate the injection for employees. In general, doctors that I know (including myself) are not writing covid vaxx exemptions for several reasons. Exemptions divide people who are being threatened with mandates (with so much more to follow) into the privileged and the non-privileged, and that did not work out well for the German Jews in WWII. The privileged were just rounded up and sent to the camps a bit later. With an exemption letter, the privileged will be required to have PCR tests every 2-3 days, wear masks, isolate from others, and will be restricted in travel and in the places they can frequent. It will be just like a vaccine green pass, which you will have to show. The peer pressure will be crushing and soon even a doctor's letter will not be considered valid. Only evidence of a near death experience from the first injection will be acceptable (i.e. considered a "genuine" medical condition) and, even then, the person will be sent to an allegeist who will say go ahead with #2, but have some adrenaline nearby. Eventually, those trying to circumvent the mandate will be pressured (read: tortured) into submission. Our estimates of the time this will take is 6-8 weeks maximum. The essential goal of the enemy is to get a shot into everyone's arm, with no exceptions.

This really is the time to fight back and not avoid confrontation. Tempering for individuals by using exemptions will lessen our chances of success because it will take the most motivated and active fighters out of the group. We mustn't take any resistors out of the resistance, but encourage them to stand up to this crisis. That means organizing people that do not want the shots and going after employers. We are at a watershed moment and now is the time to act.

Note: Currently, Dr. Malthouse is seen as providing "inaccurate" information regarding CV-19 by "fact-checkers." In other words, he is vilified due to his stance against the accepted narrative.

Satan's extreme intelligence must have allowed him to learn a great deal from watching Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden enough to know how he could make them fall. It worked very well and at the time Satan really learned he had only one card to play.

Since that time, Satan has come to know human beings far better than we know ourselves and I believe he has shared much of that knowledge with many human beings. Think of all the dictators that this world has endured and then ask how it was they were able to overcome a society to become top dog? Once they got to that point, they became vile and murderous, using abject fear to get and keep control of their populace.

Believe me when I say that the fascists throughout history are all cut from the same cloth and Mr. Biden is really no different. They know what works and how to turn people to their own agenda. Currently, they are using fear of CV to roundup and corral society and this is happening throughout the world. Added to this is the fear of losing one's job and being pushed to the edges of society, not allowed to participate in it.

This has happened in Australia and is on the way in other nations like the UK where freedom and autonomy is a thing of distant memories. People are isolated, forced to remain in their homes (allowed out to exercise for only one hour a day), not allowed to travel far from home and other draconian fascist mandates apply. The police in Australia and other areas have become brutal in dealing with people from which freedom has been stolen.

Again, this is all in the name of CV-19 and the possibility of dying from a disease so deadly, you have to be tested to know if you have it and if you do have it, you have a 99.8% survivability rating depending upon your demographic.

Now, added to that is the additional mandates boxing people in even further by forcing them to get the CV injection or testing weekly. As I said, if this goes without push-back, the option for testing will likely be removed. All of this is leading to an authoritarianism that is being normalized here in the USA.

So what does this have to do with the title of this article - Anger Without Sin - and what do I mean?

Ephesians 4:26:

Be angry, and do not sin: do not let the sun go down on your wrath.

Paul is telling us several things here. First, he is not telling us we should never be angry at anything. Too many Christians seem to believe that anger has no place in the life of a Christian. Second, Paul is saying that there may be times when we become righteously angry and when we do, we should not allow our anger to fester and take over our lives.

The problem with anger is something that we are all aware of and because of this, we try to avoid it. When people get angry at a spouse or a situation, the tendency is to say things we regret later or to act in a way that is sinful. Paul warns against such things by telling the Ephesian believers (and us), that anger in and of itself is not sin. However, uncontrolled anger can certainly lead to it. Anger must be measured and focused and it must be limited in duration as well.

Let's take a page from Jesus' life to illustrate this. On several occasions Jesus "cleansed" the Temple area. Jesus did this the first time as recorded in John 2:11-12. Roughly three years later, He again cleansed the Temple as recorded in Matthew 21:12-17.

Now the Passover of the Jews was at hand, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem. And He found in the temple those who sold oxen and sheep and doves, and the money changers doing business. When He had made a whip of cords, He drove them all out of the temple, with the sheep and the oxen, and poured out the changers' money and overturned the tables. (John 2:14-15)

And Jesus entered the temple and drove out all who sold and bought in the temple, and he overturned the tables of the money-changers and the seats of those who sold pigeons. He said to them, 'It is written, 'My house shall be called a house of prayer,' but you make it a den of robbers.' (Matthew 21:12-13)

In both cases above, Jesus overturned tables and drove out the money changers. Clearly, Jesus was angry and it showed on His face and in the volume and power of His words and actions. There were other times that Jesus exhibited anger, more often than not against the religious leaders of His day.

The idea that Christians should never become angry is a misnomer and has helped create milksop Christians who seem to thrive on persecution. But the issue of anger can obviously be legitimate, but during those times when it is legitimate, we must guard ourselves against going so far that we end up sinning.

With the things that are happening in the USA and elsewhere, I've noticed that I've been dealing with an undercurrent of anger. It is one which has caused my blood pressure to rise (which is natural), and I've noticed that I've been dealing with thoughts that are not God-honoring with respect to Joe Biden and his administration.

My anger stems from seeing the abject fascism and tyranny emanating from the White House and it is not just about CV-19, but obviously, that's a huge part of it. The noose appears to be tightening around our necks as we are being incrementally strangled until we cry "Uncle!" but only then will it let up if we are willing to acquiesce to government demands. Unfortunately, even in "giving in" and accepting the demands of the government will likely mean we are consenting to accept even further dictates that will curtail our freedoms even further. This is the end game.

It is not about CV-19 (was it ever?). It is about gaining full control over the population in order to usher in Klaus Schwab's "great reset." It has become obvious because the Left, while constantly complaining about the "unvaxxed" as the ones who are causing the problem (when in fact, more studies and reports are indicating the vaxxed are the ones who are causing the problem because the CV injection seems to have made them more susceptible to contracting new variants of CV-19), they continue to scream just as loudly that it is the right of a woman to abort her unborn child at any point in time and that "right" should not ever be messed with; essentially the rallying cry has been, "My body, my choice!" Yet, even though her "choice" normally ends in the murder of at least one unborn human being, that's perfectly fine with the Left. The idea that I should be able to refuse to accept the CV injection is not something this same Left will consider because either they have come to believe the lie that the unvaxxed are creating all the health problems in society or they're paid trolls/bots on social network whose sole purpose is to spread that lie.

I think it is fine to be angry at the situation we face; the lies, the blackmailing, the attempts to force everyone to accept mandates for our "health and safety." The problem is when anger becomes retributive, when we begin to massage a hatred of a person for what they are trying to force us into doing against our constitutional freedoms and/or against our will.

So if you find yourself being or becoming angry over this whole situation, be angry but do not sin. Use that energy to do good things, like calling your governor or elected representatives. Nicely but emphatically demand that they do whatever legal means they have at their disposal to protect the rights we have under the Constitution. Apart from this, gather with other like-minded individuals and even consider peacefully protesting. Be warned that these events may be taken over by members of AntiFa, BLM or other Left-wing actors who simply want to stir up trouble.

Of course, all of this should be firmly under-girded with prayer and lots of it. We need God to guide us and direct our steps in these troubling times. I'm finding that the more the government wants me to simply accept what should be a voluntary medical procedure, the more I dig my feet it. It's not due to pride, but due to concern and a belief that the government does not necessarily have my best interests at heart and that's been proved repeatedly over how many decades?

The best thing we can do is pray. What does God want from us? How can we seek change in the face of growing fascism? What should my demeanor be? In the end, we may end up losing but it won't be because we did not try to resist tyranny. If we comport ourselves correctly even if angry, those who we stand against (and remember, our fight is not against flesh and blood but all the spiritual powers and wickedness in the spiritual realm; Ephesians 6:12), will at the very least get the message and their accusations against us will not be validated, even if God allows them to win.

I've said it many times in previous articles, but things are getting more difficult throughout society. If we left everything unchecked and without resistance, imagine where society would be now. It seems we are getting there still.

We have nothing to lose and everything to gain by praying, asking God for His strength and direction, and resisting the fascism and tyranny. I'd rather at least try than simply give up (or let others do it), because that, to me, is too cowardly.

Imagine if Jesus had overlooked the money changers in the Temple. Imagine if He had said, "Oh well, I'll let someone else deal with it." Of course, that's fantasy because we know what He did on two occasions. He took responsibility because of the situation in front of Him. I believe we have the same responsibility in society today, which could correct many wrongs. It will also show the world what it means to be an angry Christian who is not sinning.
