

BRIEFING ROOM

Remarks by President Biden on Fighting the COVID-19 Pandemic

SEPTEMBER 09, 2021 • SPEECHES AND REMARKS

5:02 P.M. EDT

THE PRESIDENT: Good evening, my fellow Americans. I want to talk to you about where we are in the battle against COVID-19, the progress we've made, and the work we have left to do.

And it starts with understanding this: Even as the Delta variant 19 [sic] has — COVID-19 — has been hitting this country hard, we have the tools to combat the virus, if we can come together as a country and use those tools.

If we raise our vaccination rate, protect ourselves and others with masking and expanded testing, and identify people who are infected, we can and we will turn the tide on COVID-19.

It will take a lot of hard work, and it's going to take some time. Many of us are frustrated with the nearly 80 million Americans who are still not vaccinated, even though the vaccine is safe, effective, and free.

You might be confused about what is true and what is false about COVID-19. So before I outline the new steps to fight COVID-19 that I'm going to be announcing tonight, let me give you some clear information about where we stand.

First, we have cons- — we have made considerable progress in battling COVID-19. When I became President, about 2 million Americans were fully vaccinated. Today, over 175 million Americans have that protection.

Before I took office, we hadn't ordered enough vaccine for every American. Just weeks in office, we did. The week before I took office, on January 20th of this year, over 25,000 Americans died that week from COVID-19. Last week, that grim weekly toll was down 70 percent.

And in the three months before I took office, our economy was faltering, creating just 50,000 jobs a month. We're now averaging 700,000 new jobs a month in the past three months.

This progress is real. But while America is in much better shape than it was seven months ago when I took office, I need to tell you a second fact.

We're in a tough stretch, and it could last for a while. The highly contagious Delta variant that I began to warn America about back in July spread in late summer like it did in other countries before us.

While the vaccines provide strong protections for the vaccinated, we read about, we hear about, and we see the stories of hospitalized people, people on their death beds, among the unvaccinated over these past few weeks.

This is a pandemic of the unvaccinated. And it's caused by the fact that despite America having an unprecedented and successful vaccination program, despite the fact that for almost five months free vaccines have been available in 80,000 different locations, we still have nearly 80 million Americans who have failed to get the shot.

And to make matters worse, there are elected officials actively working to undermine the fight against COVID-19. Instead of encouraging people to get vaccinated and mask up, they're ordering mobile morgues for the unvaccinated dying from COVID in their communities. This is totally unacceptable.

Third, if you wonder how all this adds up, here's the math: The vast majority of Americans are doing the right thing. Nearly three quarters of the eligible have gotten at least one shot, but one quarter has not gotten any. That's nearly 80 million Americans not vaccinated. And in a country as large as ours, that's 25 percent minority. That 25 percent can cause a lot of damage — and they are.

The unvaccinated overcrowd our hospitals, are overrunning the emergency rooms and intensive care units, leaving no room for someone with a heart attack, or ~~panereitis~~ [pancreatitis], or cancer.

And fourth, I want to emphasize that the vaccines provide very strong protection from severe illness from COVID-19. I know there's a lot of confusion and misinformation. But the world's leading scientists confirm that if you are fully vaccinated, your risk of severe illness from COVID-19 is very low.

In fact, based on available data from the summer, only one of out of every 160,000 fully vaccinated Americans was hospitalized for COVID per day.

These are the facts.

So here's where we stand: The path ahead, even with the Delta variant, is not nearly as bad as last winter. But what makes it incredibly more frustrating is that we have the tools to combat COVID-19, and a distinct minority of Americans – supported by a distinct minority of elected officials – are keeping us from turning the corner. These pandemic politics, as I refer to, are making people sick, causing unvaccinated people to die.

We cannot allow these actions to stand in the way of protecting the large majority of Americans who have done their part and want to get back to life as normal.

As your President, I'm announcing tonight a new plan to require more Americans to be vaccinated, to combat those blocking public health.

My plan also increases testing, protects our economy, and will make our kids safer in schools. It consists of six broad areas of action and many specific measures in each that – and each of those actions that you can read more about at WhiteHouse.gov. WhiteHouse.gov.

The measures – these are going to take time to have full impact. But if we implement them, I believe and the scientists indicate, that in the months ahead we can reduce the number of unvaccinated Americans, decrease hospitalizations and deaths, and allow our children to go to school safely and keep our economy strong by keeping businesses open.

First, we must increase vaccinations among the unvaccinated with new vaccination requirements. Of the nearly 80 million eligible Americans who have not gotten vaccinated, many said they were waiting for approval from the Food and Drug Administration – the FDA. Well, last month, the FDA granted that approval.

So, the time for waiting is over. This summer, we made progress through the combination of vaccine requirements and incentives, as well as the FDA approval. Four million more people got their first shot in August than they did in July.

But we need to do more. This is not about freedom or personal choice. It's about protecting yourself and those around you – the people you work with, the people you care about, the people you love.

My job as President is to protect all Americans.

So, tonight, I'm announcing that the Department of Labor is developing an emergency rule to require all employers with 100 or more employees, that together employ over 80 million workers, to ensure their workforces are fully vaccinated or show a negative test at least once a week.

Some of the biggest companies are already requiring this: United Airlines, Disney, Tysons Food, and even Fox News.

The bottom line: We're going to protect vaccinated workers from unvaccinated co-workers. We're going to reduce the spread of COVID-19 by increasing the share of the workforce that is vaccinated in businesses all across America.

My plan will extend the vaccination requirements that I previously issued in the healthcare field. Already, I've announced, we'll be requiring vaccinations that all nursing home workers who treat patients on Medicare and Medicaid, because I have that federal authority.

Tonight, I'm using that same authority to expand that to cover those who work in hospitals, home healthcare facilities, or other medical facilities -- a total of 17 million healthcare workers.

If you're seeking care at a health facility, you should be able to know that the people treating you are vaccinated. Simple. Straightforward. Period.

Next, I will sign an executive order that will now require all executive branch federal employees to be vaccinated -- all. And I've signed another executive order that will require federal contractors to do the same.

If you want to work with the federal government and do business with us, get vaccinated. If you want to do business with the federal government, vaccinate your workforce.

And tonight, I'm removing one of the last remaining obstacles that make it difficult for you to get vaccinated.

The Department of Labor will require employers with 100 or more workers to give those workers paid time off to get vaccinated. No one should lose pay in order to get vaccinated or take a loved one to get vaccinated.

Today, in total, the vaccine requirements in my plan will affect about 100 million Americans -- two thirds of all workers.

And for other sectors, I issue this appeal: To those of you running large entertainment venues -- from sports arenas to concert venues to movie theaters -- please require folks to get vaccinated or show a negative test as a condition of entry.

And to the nation's family physicians, pediatricians, GPs -- general practitioners -- you're the most trusted medical voice to your patients. You may be the one person who can get someone to change their mind about being vaccinated.

Tonight, I'm asking each of you to reach out to your unvaccinated patients over the next two weeks and make a personal appeal to them to get the shot. America needs your personal involvement in this critical effort.

And my message to unvaccinated Americans is this: What more is there to wait for? What more do you need to see? We've made vaccinations free, safe, and convenient.

The vaccine has FDA approval. Over 200 million Americans have gotten at least one shot.

We've been patient, but our patience is wearing thin. And your refusal has cost all of us. So, please, do the right thing. But just don't take it from me; listen to the voices of unvaccinated Americans who are lying in hospital beds, taking their final breaths, saying, "If only I had gotten vaccinated." "If only."

It's a tragedy. Please don't let it become yours.

The second piece of my plan is continuing to protect the vaccinated.

For the vast majority of you who have gotten vaccinated, I understand your anger at those who haven't gotten vaccinated. I understand the anxiety about getting a "breakthrough" case.

But as the science makes clear, if you're fully vaccinated, you're highly protected from severe illness, even if you get COVID-19.

In fact, recent data indicates there is only one confirmed positive case per 5,000 fully vaccinated Americans per day.

You're as safe as possible, and we're doing everything we can to keep it that way — keep it that way, keep you safe.

That's where boosters come in — the shots that give you even more protection than after your second shot.

Now, I know there's been some confusion about boosters. So, let me be clear: Last month, our top government doctors announced an initial plan for booster shots for vaccinated Americans. They believe that a booster is likely to provide the highest level of protection yet.

Of course, the decision of which booster shots to give, when to start them, and who will give them, will be left completely to the scientists at the FDA and the Centers for Disease Control.

But while we wait, we've done our part. We've bought enough boosters — enough booster shots — and the distribution system is ready to administer them.

As soon as they are authorized, those eligible will be able to get a booster right away in tens of thousands of sites across the — sites across the country for most Americans, at your nearby drug store, and for free.

The third piece of my plan is keeping — and maybe the most important — is keeping our children safe and our schools open. For any parent, it doesn't matter how low the risk of any illness or accident is when it comes to your child or grandchild. Trust me, I know.

So, let me speak to you directly. Let me speak to you directly to help ease some of your worries.

It comes down to two separate categories: children ages 12 and older who are eligible for a vaccine now, and children ages 11 and under who are not yet eligible.

The safest thing for your child 12 and older is to get them vaccinated. They get vaccinated for a lot of things. That's it. Get them vaccinated.

As with adults, almost all the serious COVID-19 cases we're seeing among adolescents are in unvaccinated 12- to 17-year-olds — an age group that lags behind in vaccination rates.

So, parents, please get your teenager vaccinated.

What about children under the age of 12 who can't get vaccinated yet? Well, the best way for a parent to protect their child under the age of 12 starts at home. Every parent, every teen sibling, every caregiver around them should be vaccinated.

Children have four times higher chance of getting hospitalized if they live in a state with low vaccination rates rather than the states with high vaccination rates.

Now, if you're a parent of a young child, you're wondering when will it be — when will it be — the vaccine available for them. I strongly support an independent scientific review for vaccine uses for children under 12. We can't take shortcuts with that scientific work.

But I've made it clear I will do everything within my power to support the FDA with any resource it needs to continue to do this as safely and as quickly as possible, and our nation's top doctors are committed to keeping the public at large updated on the process so parents can plan.

Now to the schools. We know that if schools follow the science and implement the safety measures — like testing, masking, adequate ventilation systems that we provided the money for, social distancing, and vaccinations — then children can be safe from COVID-19 in schools.

Today, about 90 percent of school staff and teachers are vaccinated. We should get that to 100 percent. My administration has already acquired teachers at the schools run by the Defense Department — because I have the authority as President in the federal system — the Defense Department and the Interior Department — to get vaccinated. That's authority I possess.

Tonight, I'm announcing that we'll require all of nearly 300,000 educators in the federal paid program, Head Start program, must be vaccinated as well to protect your youngest — our youngest — most precious Americans and give parents the comfort.

And tonight, I'm calling on all governors to require vaccination for all teachers and staff. Some already have done so, but we need more to step up.

Vaccination requirements in schools are nothing new. They work. They're overwhelmingly supported by educators and their unions. And to all school officials trying to do the right thing by our children: I'll always be on your side.

Let me be blunt. My plan also takes on elected officials and states that are undermining you and these lifesaving actions. Right now, local school officials are trying to keep children safe in a pandemic while their governor picks a fight with them and even threatens their salaries or their jobs. Talk about bullying in schools. If they'll not help — if these governors won't help us beat the pandemic, I'll use my power as President to get them out of the way.

The Department of Education has already begun to take legal action against states undermining protection that local school officials have ordered. Any teacher or school official whose pay is withheld for doing the right thing, we will have that pay restored by the federal government 100 percent. I promise you I will have your back.

The fourth piece of my plan is increasing testing and masking. From the start, America has failed to do enough COVID-19 testing. In order to better detect and control the Delta variant, I'm taking steps tonight to make testing more available, more affordable, and more convenient. I'll use the Defense Production Act to increase production of rapid tests, including those that you can use at home.

While that production is ramping up, my administration has worked with top retailers, like Walmart, Amazon, and Kroger's, and tonight we're announcing that, no later than next week, each of these outlets will start to sell at-home rapid test kits at cost for the next three months. This is an immediate price reduction for at-home test kits for up to 35 percent reduction.

We'll also expand — expand free testing at 10,000 pharmacies around the country. And we'll commit — we're committing $2 billion to purchase nearly 300 million rapid tests for distribution to community health centers, food banks, schools, so that every American, no matter their income, can access free and convenient tests. This is important to everyone, particularly for a parent or a child — with a child not old enough to be vaccinated. You'll be able to test them at home and test those around them.

In addition to testing, we know masking helps stop the spread of COVID-19. That's why when I came into office, I required masks for all federal buildings and on federal lands, on airlines, and other modes of transportation.

Today — tonight, I'm announcing that the Transportation Safety Administration — the TSA — will double the fines on travelers that refuse to mask. If you break the rules, be prepared to pay.

And, by the way, show some respect. The anger you see on television toward flight attendants and others doing their job is wrong; it's ugly.

The fifth piece of my plan is protecting our economic recovery. Because of our vaccination program and the American Rescue Plan, which we passed early in my administration, we've had record job creation for a new administration, economic growth unmatched in 40 years. We cannot let unvaccinated do this progress — undo it, turn it back.

So tonight, I'm announcing additional steps to strengthen our economic recovery. We'll be expanding COVID-19 Economic Injury Disaster Loan programs. That's a program that's going to allow small businesses to borrow up to $2 million from the current $500,000 to keep going if COVID-19 impacts on their sales.

These low-interest, long-term loans require no repayment for two years and be can used to hire and retain workers, purchase inventory, or even pay down higher cost debt racked up since the pandemic began. I'll also be taking additional steps to help small businesses stay afloat during the pandemic.

Sixth, we're going to continue to improve the care of those who do get COVID-19. In early July, I announced the deployment of surge response teams. These are teams comprised of experts from the Department of Health and Human Services, the CDC, the Defense Department, and the Federal Emergency Management Agency — FEMA — to areas in the country that need help to stem the spread of COVID-19.

Since then, the federal government has deployed nearly 1,000 staff, including doctors, nurses, paramedics, into 18 states. Today, I'm announcing that the Defense Department will double the number of military health teams that they'll deploy to help their fellow Americans in hospitals around the country.

Additionally, we're increasing the availability of new medicines recommended by real doctors, not conspir- — conspiracy theorists. The monoclonal antibody treatments have been shown to reduce the risk of hospitalization by up to 70 percent for unvaccinated people at risk of developing sefe- — severe disease.

We've already distributed 1.4 million courses of these treatments to save lives and reduce the strain on hospitals. Tonight, I'm announcing we will increase the average pace of shipment across the country of free monoclonal antibody treatments by another 50 percent.

Before I close, let me say this: Communities of color are disproportionately impacted by this virus. And as we continue to battle COVID-19, we will ensure that equity continues to be at the center of our response. We'll ensure that everyone is reached. My first responsibility as President is to protect the American people and make sure we have enough vaccine for every American, including enough boosters for every American who's approved to get one.

We also know this virus transcends borders. That's why, even as we execute this plan at home, we need to continue fighting the virus overseas, continue to be the arsenal of vaccines.

We're proud to have donated nearly 140 million vaccines over 90 countries, more than all other countries combined, including Europe, China, and Russia combined. That's American leadership on a global stage, and that's just the beginning.

We've also now started to ship another 500 million COVID vaccines — Pfizer vaccines — purchased to donate to 100 lower-income countries in need of vaccines. And I'll be announcing additional steps to help the rest of the world later this month.

As I recently released the key parts of my pandemic preparedness plan so that America isn't caught flat-footed when a new pandemic comes again — as it will — next month, I'm also going to release the plan in greater detail.

So let me close with this: We have so- — we've made so much progress during the past seven months of this pandemic. The recent increases in vaccinations in August already are having an impact in some states where case counts are dropping in recent days. Even so, we remain at a critical moment, a critical time. We have the tools. Now we just have to finish the job with truth, with science, with confidence, and together as one nation.

Look, we're the United States of America. There's nothing — not a single thing — we're unable to do if we do it together. So let's stay together.

God bless you all and all those who continue to serve on the frontlines of this pandemic. And may God protect our troops.

Get vaccinated.

5:28 P.M. EDT

Back to...

ALT NEWS

GET VISIBLE! Advertise Here. Find Out More

ALT NEWS

Share Our Stories! - Click Here

Biden Is A Brutal Enforcer Of The Jesuit-Illuminati Globalist Warmongers

By Yoichi Shimatsu
11-16-20

After being "encouraged" to leave several countries of Asia due to my attempts at instilling truthful journalism among their youth and resistance to censorship, I have since been traveling throughout the USA. Sniffing around much like an old wolf out of its cage and reintroduced to nature, I feel that it's good to be lean and hungry, even though I am surprised at how the deer cannot figure road kill and the sheep remain content behind electric wire.

During the many decades of my absence, other than to the West Coast and New York, which have hardly any resemblance to the rest of the country other than the criminality of politicians. The vast middle stretches of the not-so New World is different from my college days in Indiana, enjoying now with trappings of prosperity thanks to Dollar stores while families suffer the same old financial insecurity. The more things change, as the saying goes. Today's nemesis is the repressive COVID overkill of distancing and business closures, not much different from the Arab oil embargo of the 1970s.

The heavy hand of bureaucracy is heavier depending on the state, Pennsylvania's green new deal killing off agriculture and animal husbandry as opposed to Wyoming, which buffalo and cowboys still roam. It is depressing to realized the near-total disappearance of the horse-and-cowboy culture, with pastures rolling with hay for Angus herds now that filling the belly has become more of a priority than riding high in the saddle. Despite the sadness in the air and decline in rules of the road, there are still glimmers of America's former greatness of spirit, which hopefully can be revived in an uphill battle against sloth, gluttony, medication and mindless greed.

Jacksonian Values

Just a few days ago my appreciation for American courage was refreshed on a visit to the Hermitage, the historic home of President Andrew Jackson, that youthful hero of the Revolutionary War and undaunted victor at the Battle of New Orleans in the War of 1812. The frugal Tennessee general and grassroots politician was able to use the cheap local lumber, beams and boards of poplar ash, to create the appearance of classical Grecian grandeur for his mansion, as it were built with stone, his objective being to connect the rugged values of populist democracy on the frontier with distant ancient roots, freedom of thought and action being characteristics of a sovereign people. I was surprised to learn that an elderly Marquis de Lafayette had a similar admiration of the homespun simplicity behind the elegant facade on his visit to Nashville in 1825.

The Marquis and Old Hickory are heroes of yore and for ages to come, although ignored in the present era of craven self-interest, hypocritical political correctness and unabashed fraud as a lifestyle. And worse, not snow nor rain nor heat nor gloom of night stays our nation's postal workers from the swift completion of their appointed ballot stuffing. Say it ain't so, Joe! Even Amazon and DoorDash do not limit their delivery service to Democrats. I hate to admit it, it's proof that the USPS should be privatized, to be rid of Tammany Hall influence.

Old Faithful

My other gripe about this once great democracy has to do with the public's utter loss of faith from sea to radioactivity-poisoned sea. Along every byway that I've traveled, from the two-lane Tina Turner Highway in Georgia to Bear Tooth Pass between Wyoming and Montana, all the churches are locked up, parking lots empty and curtains drawn, with neither pastor nor deacon willing to risk offering a prayer or dispensing a chalice of wine in this year of coronavirus and electoral fraud. A silent crisis of state and religion is obliterating this nation's traditional values.

American values are being killed off not just by the infection rate or digital sloth or mindless arson but more from the unrelenting intent by our worst sworn enemy, as astutely predicted by the Marquis de Lafayette. "It is my opinion that if the liberties of this country, the United States of America, are destroyed, it will be by the subtlety of the Roman Catholic Jesuit priests, for they are the most crafty, dangerous enemies to civil and religious liberty. They have instigated most of the wars of Europe." So what's it have to do with Joe Biden, a member in good standing in the Knights of Malta, servant of the Illuminati Order of the British Empire and Jesuit CIA spy? Nothing to a mind-controlled clone, everything if one happens to be a patriot.

Crimes of Uncle Joe

Briefly, the objective of the Biden vote-buying operation is World War III, starting with a NATO assault against Russia, in short a revival of the Eastward Expansion policy of the Clinton era. The effectiveness of drones against battle tanks is seen by Agency tacticians as enabling at last the technical means to defeat Russian armored forces.

The deeper motive involves the historical drive of the Jesuits, as led by Jesuit-trained intel execs like Bill Donovan, Casey, Angleton and Dulles to exterminate the Orthodox Church of Russia, which has lasting ties with the churches of the East, including those ancient faith communities in the Aramaic-speaking region of Jesus of Galilee. The Vatican's sectarian vendetta that began with the Great Schism has since morphed into unholy alliances with the Hapsburg empire, its Frankist Jewish spies, the Rothschild Illuminati, and institutionalized by the Society of Jesus IHS, the Jesuits.

For agnostics and non-Christian, it is sufficient to realize that the concentration of secular and military power by manipulative pseudo-religious fanatics perverting the mass media, AI and chipping tech is completely unacceptable and the Biden cabal must be stopped by the appropriate means in every situation.

In this geopolitical perspective, the Bidens' intrigues in Ukraine figure massively in the Jesuit-NATO preparations for a coming invasion of Russia, Belarus and Central Asia, and when that bloody work is done, Iran and China before victory in WWII is declared by whoever is left standing. For Christians, only one word is needed to describe this looming Age of Evil, that being "Antichrist", which translates to the secularists as a big Bad Apple.

Biden's Foreign Intrigues

Here are other points that should encourage a serious and thorough investigation into election fraud by the Jesuit-controlled Biden-Pelosi criminal cabal.

Young Joseph Robinette Biden cut his teeth as a CIA recruit during the late 1960s on a secret mission to the Red Guards base on the Tianshan mountains of Xinjiang, China, to monitor Soviet nuclear blasts at the nearby Semipalatinsk test site. During the Sino-Soviet split, the CIA links with PLA chief Lin Piao were conducted through a Jesuit-created "Maoist" cult called the Progressive Labor Party (PL), comprised of brain-damaged victims of the MK-ULTRA program.

Biden soon thereafter returned to China as a freshman senator fronting for the CIA. As it turns out the airplane escape of the infamous leftist Lin Piao to evade arrest in Beijing was not toward the Soviet Union as in the official claim, but as revealed to me recently by a military intelligence officer actually destined for Alaska. The CIA and the Red Guards were partners in war crimes by then, involved in looting and sabotaging Chinese cargo trains loaded with war materiel destined for North Vietnam. The Sino-CIA relationship survived Lin Piao as the Soviet split continued to widen, culminating in their joint support for the Vatican's warlord Joseph Savimbi in the Angola wars, which killed more than 2 million civilians. Thus, the China link goes much deeper than bag-man Hunter Biden's lobbying for Beijing on Capitol Hill, which was just a small part of the funding flow from Beijing to Langley, Virginia, as an IOU to the CIA.

The Jesuit connections with China began in the 18th century mission of priest Matteo Ricci, as a papal emissary to the court of the Manchu Qing Dynasty, and have since never relented, with the continuing presence of Jesuits in Macau, a base for liaison and cooperation on the mainland. Much of the anti-American tilt of late across Asia and Europe is a coordinated policy of the Jesuit order aimed at quelling the conservative American Catholic faction over Taiwan and Hong Kong policy, and suppressing any other points of resistance. Francis, the gray pontiff, being both white and black popes, must feel a kindred spirit with the ambiguous Bidens.

The HIV Blood Factor

During the George W. Bush and Bill Clinton admins, Joe Biden took a point-man role in fomenting and sponsoring the CIA operations against Yugoslavia. As a senior member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Biden was the Jesuit point-man for NATO interventions against Yugoslavia, especially Croatia where pro-Mussolini fascist-era death squads were revived by the CIA and British-led Special Air Service against the predominantly Orthodox Christian Serbs. NATO eastward expansion was actually a latter-day crusade.

The Balkans intervention took a horrendous turn when the Jesuit-linked "charity" Americares flew pallets of Factor IV (Four) blood tainted with HIV into the Balkans war zone. The HIV-infected serum was collected at Arkansas state prisons while Bill Clinton was governor of that state and running cocaine shipments from war-torn Central America into Mena Airfield in western Arkansas. The Factor IV flights left from Connecticut to Shannon Airport, a CIA-Provo IRA safe haven for drugs and weapons (like the CIA bomb used by its Provo IRA agents to assassinate Lord Montbatten); then onto a cargo terminal in Frankfurt, Germany, where it was met by Jesuit priests involved in Balkans covert weapons shipment; and then to Zagreb, Croatia, for distribution by a CIA-funded local hospital administrator-physician to unknowing war-wound victims in Bosnia-Herzegovina, Serbia, Montenegro and Kosovo.

The purpose of deliberate infection of warring communities was to find an ethnic group with inherent HIV resistance in the biologically diverse and physically isolated Balkans communities. The Obama appointee Jim Yong Kim as the World Bank chief resulted in absurdly low infection estimatess with rigged data to hide the extent of this war crime of medical abuse in Balkans, of which Joe Biden and his fellow Jesuit spooks were and are guilty to the brink of damnation. Faith is sometimes just a fig leaf to cover over evil.

Meanwhile, the Ukraine-Russia conflict is simmering and remains under-reported in the State Department's CIA-complicit media. Hunter Biden's absurdly generous payments from Burisma, according to one of my sources, was not simply to bribe his father and the Obama cronies, but had everything to do with payment for secret weapons shipments in the conflict with Russian-backed militias in the eastern Donetsk region. The CIA executives are profiting as middleman in that trade with international arms dealers.

The Bidens are brutal murderers whose toes properly should be stretched on the same gallows as that other Jesuit stooge Benito Mussolini. Tony Fauci, another Jesuit agent, is responsible for using NIH funds for the bioweapon engineering of COVID-19 in Wisconsin, Manitoba and Bristol, England, as tracked in my 27-part series. Mass murder is a capital offense, which the Supreme Court has managed to ignore.

Jesuit-Illuminati Linkages

Let me conclude with the connection of the Jesuits and the Illuminati with Joe Biden's nomination and personal accompaniment of Mike Bloomberg to his knighting by the Queen of England into the royal order of the Knights of the British Empire (KBE), as discussed in my in-depth article on Bloomie, which apparently has been censored by the CIA, British intel and the Rothschilds.

The Jesuit-Illuminati link is based on Adam Weiskopf's personal evolution as a Jesuit novice to found the Illuminism. Any doubters among the PC academics should read Johann Wolfgang von Goethe's Travels in Italy, which includes his praise of the papal-banned Jesuits at the ruins of their former college in Brera, northern Italy. Goethe was the leading light of the Illuminati in the late 18th century.

Assuredly, it all goes deeper and wider, and religion and political correctness are being used as cover for mass murder on a global scale. The Marquis de Lafayette and Andrew Jackson were the saviors of this country, but in contrast the Bidens, Clintons, Obamas and Pelosi et al are damning a once-fine nation to the lower depths of hell. So stand with what's right to break their evil spell.

To quote Andrew Jackson: "The Bible is the rock upon which this Republic rests." It's high time to reopen the church doors to break the demonic spell that grips this great land.

Back to...

ALT NEWS

GET VISIBLE! Advertise Here. Find Out More

ALT NEWS

Share Our Stories! - Click Here

Biden's Grim Afghan Rout Is Due To The CIA-Jesuit-MI-6 Bromance With Jihadists

By Yoichi Shimatsu
Exclusive to Rense
9-2-21

The Biden White House's treachery has disgracefully ended two decades of an American military presence in Afghanistan much like Henry Kissinger's back-stabbing that sabotaged any possibility for a multi-party resolution to the Vietnam War. A far better outcome could have been a coalition government forged from hostile ethnic groups, similar to the Lebanon arrangement, which was both feasible and desirable to restore the territorial integrity and long-term domestic peace for Afghanistan. A consultative arrangement between the different ethnic and tribal groupings was, however, prevented by Biden's overconfidence in a by-now outdated reliance on his personal connections with Buckingham Palace and "Babylon on the Thames" aka the MI6 spy service.

Another Jesuit plot

As disclosed by Joe Biden's tapping of publisher Michael Bloomberg for initiation into the Knights of the British Empire (KBE), covered in my since badly marred expose altered by the spy agencies, the Democrat Irish president's longtime connections with British intelligence are based in his inbred loyalties to the Jesuit order since university days. The British Jesuits are renowned for their subversive activities against the Calvinist Protestants known as the Puritans by penetration of the Anglican hierarchy or Church of England, as disclosed in the "priest hole" hidden in the estates of the secret Catholic gentry, explicitly shown in the James Bond movie "Skyfall". The Jesuit intrigues have repeatedly reached across the pond to subvert the "American cousins" toward involvement in European affairs on behalf of the Crown, most dramatically in the disinformation plot known as Russiagate against then presidential candidate Donald Trump.

The Jesuits made their comeback out of the priest hole to above-ground social acceptability through an ecumenical project among the high Anglican clergy and scholars known as the Oxford Movement in the late 19th century, which culminated in the Vatican appointment of the group's leading convert John Henry Newman as a Cardinal. Steered by Professor Edward Puesy, its broader imperial aim was to revive the Vatican's global reach through establishing contact in the Victorian era with fanatical non-Turkish Muslims and also the Mormons, which figured more recently in the MI6-influenced Mormon vote against reelection of President Trump. Even more treacherous was the British intelligence connection that successfully recruited the sectarian Wahhabi leadership during the World War I uprising against the Turkish-led Ottoman Empire, as depicted in "Lawrence of Arabia". The Jesuit-Wahhab connection was largely behind covert MI6 support for the Islamic Brotherhood against the secular Baathist Party, including Nasser and Mubarak in Egypt, Saddam Hussein in Iraq and the Assad clan's Alawite-led Syrian government.

This same dark shadow of the MI6 enveloped the Deobandi sect of Sunni Islam in India, the major ideological force behind the formation of the Taliban in Afghanistan and in the ethnic Pashtun tribal territories along Pakistan's Afghan border. The subversion of a puritanical reformed sect was accomplished by MI6 with enticements including hosted visits to the UK to recruit immigrant Muslim youths, lubricated with generous funding and the forbidden fruit of Scotch whiskey. Therefore, with the British secret service connections in the once colonized Subcontinent, Biden had every reason to believe he had a secret alliance with the Taliban "in the bag." Unfortunately for this Jesuit-style plot, over the past decade the influence of British-intelligence officers and embassy staffers has diminished over Pakistan's spy organization, the Inter-Services Intelligence (ISI). During the long war in Afghanistan, the reliable elder Pakistani spies were surpassed by a new generation of patriotic younger officers who are not in the least awed by Western colonialism's minions, the CIA and State Department or the Crown, largely due to the dismal incompetence and arrogance of the Americans in the Pakistan-Afghanistan theater.

Pride before the Fall

Overconfidence based on arrogant overreach did in Biden's attempt to broker a deal between hostile parties on the ground in order to maintain Afghanistan as the maelstrom of political instability in Central Asia and the base of covert operations against Iran, Russia and China in the global struggle for Caspian Basin oil and gas and extraction of strategic metals. Instead of steering bilateral negotiations between the White House and the Pashtun-dominated Taliban toward a broader framework inclusive of other ethnic elements in the Afghan government, including Uzbeks, Tajiks, Turkmen and Hazaras, the bilateral talks failed when the Taliban leadership realized that Biden was exploiting the peace process for his own CIA operatives to penetrate the Pashtun leadership and had zero interest in achieving the underlying trust in the prelude toward national unity for the Afghans.

The bilateral peace talks initiated by the Trump administration were reduced to a cheap ploy by Biden's team aimed at continued strife between the country's ethnic groups, thereby setting the stage for a checkerboard of regional conflicts against the pro-Russian Tajiks, pro-China Uzbeks and pro-Iran Hazaras, similar to the divide-and-rule tactics that were so damaging to Lebanon during its civil war of the 1980s. The larger strategic objective of this dark plot was to create a geopolitical wedge between Russia and China in order to prevent the One Road and Belt (OBOR) transport and logistics project from bringing a modicum of economic development and security cooperation to the Eurasian interior. Instead, Team Biden planted the seeds for a British-style "divide and rule" strategy to pit Central Asia's ethnic blocs against each other, in short, for chaos to sabotage cooperation.

Given the fact of his high rank in the Knights of Malta, a military order dedicated to the defense of the Papacy, religious fanaticism cannot be ignored in America's second Catholic president. By contrast, the far less sectarian John F. Kennedy had severe policy differences with the Vatican and Cardinal Francis Spellman, the architect of the Vietnam intervention, on religion-based conflicts against Cuba and in Indochina. Biden's carrot-and-stick policy toward the Taliban was a means to open a second front against the underbelly of Russia in support of the Biden clan's plot to take over Ukraine, to be handed over to the Jesuit militants and their chief conspirer Pope Francis, who after all adopted his titular name after that early Jesuit Francis Borgia, founder of the most notorious family of political intrigue and assassination in European history.

It's now obvious that the Taliban leadership smelled a rat in their talks with the CIA and soon recognized that diplomatic tensions and eventual warfare with Russia, Iran and possibly even China are not in Afghanistan's best interest. Therefore, the Talibs turned against Biden and, unfortunately as collateral damage, the American troops trapped on the ground who could not immediately fly out of Bagram airfield. Joe Biden has blood on his hands that cannot be washed off, and that includes the blood of Americans.

Instigator of foreign aggression

The talks with the Taliban were doomed to fail because President Joe Biden could never fulfil his international duty as a trustworthy arbiter for a diplomatic solution given his past sectarian record in the Senate Foreign Relations committee during the Clinton-era butchery of the Republic of Yugoslavia into mutually murderous petty principalities. Biden-style diplomatic conniving breeds ethnic hatred, religious intolerance, political chicanery and economic fragmentation with the attendant corruption, criminal mafias, refugees, poverty and social crisis.

The most disgusting sight was the warmonger Biden's alligator tears for 13 American servicemen killed in the chaotic retreat out of Kabul. His past record shows him to have been a major instigator of American military aggression against Afghanistan on flimsy accusations fabricated by the CIA. Biden was the key senator in support of Clinton's 1998 decision to fire volleys of naval-launched cruise missiles against bin Laden's compound in Khost, Afghanistan to avenge militant Islamic bombings of U.S. diplomatic, in violation of international law and without a shred of proof of Osama bin Laden's involvement in those attacks. That barrage of lies and warheads set the precedent for President George Bush to pin the blame for the September 11, 2001, demolition of the World Trade Center on the Taliban government, which was "guilty" of sheltering Bin Laden from American attempts at assassination of that straw man without a fair trial based on convincing evidence, which should have been available in heaps since Osama had a long record of working for the CIA during the Afghan resistance to the Soviet invasion. The underlying motives of gaining control over Central Asian oil resources and divide-and-rule of the post-Soviet Caspian Basin region are discussed below.

The as-yet untold toll

Deception is a weapon in warfare and sometimes a necessity in diplomacy, but to deceive everybody all the time through manufacturing crises makes one a liar and a cheat, Mr. Biden. Our military personnel once again are being lost in a limbo of VA hospitals or tossed out homeless on the inner-city streets while brutalized Afghan children and their mothers are abandoned helpless and hopeless in devastated villages. More than 1,600 American servicemen were reported by the Pentagon killed in the conflict, but that is a gross underestimate excluding unreported fatalities among military contractors, the majority being recently retired active combat soldiers. The official mortality rate does not include soldiers who later died of complications in VA hospitals and other war-related causes, including the effects of toxic chemical burn pits. More than 170,000 Afghans were killed during often one-sided military engagements, a figure that excludes the many more fatalities due to the lack of medical care in bombed villages along with deprivation and outdoors exposure as war refugees. There are still more than 2.5 million Afghan refugees, many of them harbored in Iran and Pakistan.

An imperial White House and its corrupt Congressional lackeys once again walk away with sighs of relief from the horrifying catastrophe that their generals, defense contractors, chemical industrialists, tech companies and complicit news media tycoons inflicted on yet another remote agrarian nation across the ocean, this time at the far end of the Himalayas. Mr. Biden, this slaughter to advance your sinister desires is not a necessity, it is a savage crime and indeed a mortal sin.

Despite their losses and suffering, the Afghan people do not stoop to mourn in sight of their oppressors but instead express pride in defeating yet another pompous foreign invader. Their armed resistance and ultimate moral victory leaves us Americans and our NATO partners with little choice but to wallow in self-pity over our senseless addiction to "just" warfare as a salve for our vapid consumer society's spiritual vacuum. Sure, let's do better next time because we are not villains at heart, right? Wrong. Despite the ethical challenges from launching and continuing a mass slaughter without any justification, our hypocrisy can still muster sufficient temerity to boast of the goodness of our national character and praise whatever semblance of democracy still survives in a few isolated corners and remote farmlands. The truth emerging from the Afghan fiasco is that Americans desperately need a civil war against self-deception.

Although it may seem impolite, indeed rude of me to be pointing a finger toward the perpetrators of mass murder, let me clarify here that I have earned that privilege as a foreign correspondent in the Pakistan-Afghan theater at the war's start 20 years ago. Immediately before and after the U.S. invasion, I was the only dissenting non-Muslim journalist in the press pool in Peshawar, which swelled to 2,000 reporters and cameramen, to then voice opposition to the impending U.S. bombing campaign and ground invasion. During the military buildup in the Arabian Sea, I showed proof that the U.S. Embassy in Islamabad had absolutely no hard evidence that Osama bin Laden's henchmen entered Pakistan past a tightly sealed Afghan border and then make their way to Boston and New York to hijack two airliners inside U.S. borders for ramming the World Trade Center.

It was preposterous for George W. Bush to make such unfounded claims when the so-called Muslim attackers were either Saudi or Egyptian with connections to the CIA, MI6 or the Mossad. Meanwhile, tens of thousands of Afghan and Pakistani Pashtun boys realized the bogus accusation was a set-up and therefore rallied to defend their nation against the impending assault by war-mongering foreigners, just like their ancestors had done in the ancient past against powerful enemies. If more of the foreign press had reported on the actual facts on the ground post-911, the imbecile Bush's invasion might have been prevented. I make no apologies for telling the truth, especially now after self-generated folly has come back to humble these United States.

A self-serving Heartland theory

There's not a lot to love about two decades of horrific warfare involving IED blasts, attack helicopter raids, nighttime smart bomb targeting of homes, and long-range sniper fire. The senseless cruelty had little to do with the 911 affair despite the bogus claims from CNN since the conflict was motivated by then Vice President Dick Cheney's plans to run an oil-and-gas pipeline from Central Asia through Taliban-dominated ethnic Pashtun areas to Gujarat, on the coast of India, for shipment to major Western energy corporations. The American-led expedition in Afghanistan (followed by the invasion of OPEC heavyweight Iraq) was a bunt to get on first base before stealing the oil and gas resources of the former Soviet republics in Central Asia, under a CIA-hatched master plan known as the Caspian Basin Project with bilateral support from leading members of both the Democratic and Republican parties.

The immediate fear back then at Langley headquarters, and wars are indeed inspired by the anxiety over losing out on the opportunity to loot, was the so-called "Moscow-to-Mumbai" master plan, a transport-and-trade corridor linking Mother Russia to the warm-water ports of her dreams in India, with the gas-and-oil fuel for trucks and trains and electrical power plants to come from the former Soviet republics of Turkmenistan and Tajikistan via the transmission-and-transit hub at Termez, Uzbekistan. Cheney, Rumsfeld, Bush and the Clinton crowd therefore aimed to checkmate the M-t-M either by gaining Taliban support for their grand larceny or, as it turned out, replacing the Talibs with a puppet regime of corrupt northern warlords of Uzbek and Tajik ethnicity.

Aside from the motive of crass greed for energy profits, the strategic rationale shared by the gentlemen from the USA-NATO juggernaut was to gain a permanent foothold in the "Heartland" of the Euro-Asian continent. The Eurasian Heartland strategy devised by Jimmy Carter's paranoiac national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, posited that it is unacceptable for any rival power, particularly Russia, to dominate the continental interior, from whence it can militarily expand in any direction. This spatial fear is based in Halford Mackinder's thesis of an inherent struggle between nations with sea power versus land-based empires.

The phantom of a Heartland serves as justification for belligerence against economic competitors and continental powers, including Russia, China, Shia-led Iran or, for that matter, a coalition of Saudi-funded newly freed Sunni Turkic states led by a Kazakh revivalist Emir, a would-be Tamerlane the Second. There are an infinite possibility of imagined threats in those dreamy desolate realms, when one recalls that the Arab-Tibetan alliance, the latter still pagans, was once the greatest power in Central Asia, a period long since forgotten for all practical purposes other than for its halting the westward expansion of Buddhism.

If the Afghans are luckier this time around, their country along with Central Asia, devoid of Vatican and British imperial intrigues, will begin to settle down by averting ethnic conflicts and stress self-development for modest economic progress, while focusing on healing the traumas and restoring spiritual tranquility, so that there might again be peace and compassion in the heart of Eurasia.

Note: This mini-series of articles will continue through the upcoming anniversary of Operation 911.

Drawing Aside the Purple Curtain

The Papal System Today: an Analysis of the News

The Jesuits Ecstatic Over the Fraudulent Biden Victory

Shaun Willcock

This article will not delve into the immense and blatant fraud and corruption which occurred in the 2020 presidential election in the United States, which produced a hasty, prematurely-announced, phony “victory” for Joe Biden over Donald Trump. There are innumerable articles exposing this, and anyone who thinks that Biden won freely and fairly has been duped by the lies and propaganda of the lamestream media. Trump was the runaway victor. Biden “won” only by massive cheating on a scale never before witnessed in America. This stolen election has changed America for the worse, possibly forever. Its electoral process is now the same as that of any Third World, corrupt African dictatorship. For sheer scale and brazenness, it is far worse.

This article, however, will be concerned solely with the response of the Roman Catholic institution’s leadership to the Biden “victory”. Although Trump is not a Roman Catholic, traditionalist Roman Catholics supported him, because of his support for issues dear to their hearts: they oppose abortion, unlimited and uncontrolled immigration, etc. Trump’s policies struck a chord with them. On the other hand Biden, portraying himself as a practicing Roman Catholic but in truth an arch-hypocrite using his “faith” to garner votes, was the darling of liberal, “progressive”, Marxist Roman Catholics.

The Jesuits and Francis I Wanted – and Worked for – a Biden Victory

For information verifying this, please see my previous article, Trump and Biden: Courting the Roman Catholic Vote.<sup>1</sup>

In his campaign Biden made much of the fact that he professed to be a Roman Catholic. He made videos about his “faith”, quoted Francis, spoke of the “lovely” nuns he knew, etc. These were all lies. They were election ploys, nothing more.

But despite this being an utterly fraudulent election; despite the fact that Biden was declared the winner by the media even before all the votes had been counted; despite innumerable voting irregularities and solid evidence of widespread fraud and cheating in the electoral process in favour of Biden; and despite the fact that he openly supported policies completely contrary to official Roman Catholic doctrine and practice – despite all this, the Jesuit pope was ecstatic and lost no time in calling Biden, on 12 November, to congratulate him on his “victory”! A press release from the Biden-Harris transition team announced, “President-elect Joe Biden spoke this morning with His Holiness Pope Francis. The president-elect thanked His Holiness for extending blessings and congratulations and noted his appreciation for His Holiness’ leadership in promoting peace, reconciliation, and the common bonds of humanity around the world.”<sup>2</sup>

Amazing, isn’t it, how all of a sudden the Democrats, who generally have no time for religion and in fact frequently mock religious belief openly, now spoke of Francis as “His Holiness”. If Francis had called Trump to congratulate him, the Democrats would have scathingly referred to him simply as “Francis” or “the pope”; but when he called to congratulate Biden – ah, now he was reverently referred to as “His Holiness”.

The statement went on: “The president-elect expressed his desire to work together on the basis of shared belief in the dignity and equality of all humankind on issues such as caring for the marginalized and the poor, addressing the crisis of climate change, and welcoming and integrating immigrants and refugees into our communities.” Note all the usual common “social justice” causes in this statement. Glaringly absent, of course, was any reference to those policies where Biden actually opposes Roman Catholic doctrine and practice, and yet remains – at least in the eyes of the Jesuit Order – a Roman Catholic in good standing, simply because of his support for those things which matter most to Jesuits.

The Jesuit Order could barely contain its chortling glee at the Biden “victory”. The influential Jesuit magazine, La Civiltà Cattolica, the publication of which is overseen by the Vatican’s powerful secretary of state, published an article praising Biden’s fraudulent “victory”. Calling him a “practicing Catholic”, it gushed: “Biden is a patient, poised and thoughtful man; he belongs to the old school of Democrats. He is a seasoned politician, friend of many Republican congressmen, who in their hearts, probably, wished for his victory. He is part, as they say, of the ‘establishment.’”<sup>3</sup> The article conveniently omitted to mention that the election was fraudulent; that Biden supports abortion and sodomite “marriage”, both contrary to official Papal doctrine; that he is against religious liberty, even for Roman Catholic nuns; that he is a liar; that he has some very, very dangerous relationships with some very, very bad countries and people; and that being part of the establishment means he is part of the “deep state”, a puppet of powers behind the scenes who play the tune to which he dances.

But be it noted – all these qualities are ones which Jesuits admire and support!

The article went on to express what Biden will accomplish on issues very dear to the Jesuit Order today because they help forward its own purposes: the “climate change” myth, the World Health Organisation’s fight against the coronavirus farce, etc. “Probably Biden, in his first 100 days of presidency, will hurry to get back in touch with Paris [the Paris Climate Accord] to gain the ground lost in terms of climate and global warming; with Tehran to reconfirm – with some important changes – the nuclear deal; and with the World Health Organisation, in order to fight Covid-19 together globally”, the article said.

Why would the Jesuits support a man such as Joe Biden? It’s simple: because of the Jesuit doctrine and method of working. They place far more importance on advancing Rome’s power in the world than on promoting or defending traditional Roman Catholic doctrines and practices. They will readily ignore these, as they have done countless times during their history, if by doing so they can increase their power over the nations of the world.

With the Jesuits it’s all about power. By any means possible. Roman Catholic teaching? That is only relevant when it can be used as a means to the end. If not, it is cast aside.

For those with eyes to see, it was amazing how swiftly Biden committed himself to serve Jesuit causes. Just a few days after the mainstream media declared him to be the victor in the elections and thus the “president-elect”, Biden spoke via a video message to the Jesuit Refugee Service in honour of its 40th anniversary. One would think that a “president-elect” would have more important matters to deal with than making video messages for Jesuit charities, but there you are. It speaks volumes about the man, and who will pull his strings. In the message he said that when he is in office he will raise the refugee settlement cap to the highest number ever – 125,000 people per year – a reversal of what had been done under the Trump administration, when it was brought down to its lowest level ever. Here are his words: “The United States has long stood as a beacon of hope for the downtrodden and the oppressed, a leader in resettling refugees and our humanitarian response. I promise, as president, I will reclaim that proud legacy for our country. The Biden-Harris administration will restore America’s historic role in protecting the vulnerable and defending the rights of refugees everywhere and raising our annual refugee admission target to 125,000.”<sup>4</sup>

The Jesuits are not in the least interested in helping the “downtrodden” and “oppressed”. Their purpose in pushing for massive immigration into America is solely to change its demographics so as to turn it into a Roman Catholic country (via large-scale immigration from South and Central America – see a previous article of mine, America's Alien Invasion: the United States is Becoming Roman Catholic<sup>5</sup>), and to make use of large-scale Muslim immigration to commit terror attacks on American soil, weakening the country and dividing it so that it disintegrates and falls. Huge numbers of “refugees” are not genuine refugees at all, but trained guerilla fighters, saboteurs and killers. Rome, via the Jesuits, is making use of illegal immigration into America (and Europe) to destroy the West. This is what it's really all about.

Of course, the Jesuit Refugee Service was ecstatic about Biden's plan. Giulia McPherson, director of advocacy and operations at the Jesuit Refugee Service, said in a statement: “That [Biden] chose to make this announcement with us tonight is an indication that Biden is following his faith when it comes to American policy to protect and welcome refugees.” No, it doesn't indicate any such thing. What it indicates is that when his puppet-masters say jump, Biden asks, “How high?”

Many Non-Jesuit US Romish Bishops Did Not Want a Biden Victory

Let the reader understand: this does not mean that the US Roman Catholic bishops were supportive of everything Trump did. They most certainly were not. But the more traditionalist among them – and there are many still – favoured Trump over Biden because Trump supported certain key policies of the bishops whereas Biden was firmly opposed to them. Yes, the Jesuits supported Biden; but not all leading Romish bishops in America are as liberal or Marxist as the Jesuits, and many of them are very concerned about the direction the Jesuits are taking the Roman Catholic “Church” under their man, Francis. As far as these bishops are concerned, Biden should be censured by Rome, not supported. In a previous era he would have been excommunicated for his anti-Roman Catholic policies; but today these are overlooked by the Jesuits because of what he can do for them and their plans for the world. And Francis, Jesuit that he is, opposes America's more traditionalist bishops as well.

And so these more conservative bishops now face the bizarre situation of having a Jesuitical Roman Catholic in the White House, who will actually zealously oppose them and usher in a number of anti-Roman Catholic policies, to the great detriment of the “Church” of Rome in the United States.

No wonder they are worried. As has happened so often in history, it's the Jesuit Order against much of the rest of the Roman Catholic hierarchy.

But being the devoted Papists that they are, for the most part they avoided any strong criticism of Biden (or of their pope). They even issued a statement congratulating Biden and Harris on 7 November – when the controlled media announced that Biden was “president-elect” even before this was officially announced or proven.

The announcement that Biden had won was so premature, especially given that the Trump campaign filed numerous legal challenges to the results, that even many Roman Catholics themselves objected to what their bishops had done. Some added that the bishops' congratulatory statement did not challenge Biden about his anti-Roman Catholic policies on abortion.<sup>6</sup> It looked like they were being cowardly and soft on Biden. Which they were.

Instead of overtly criticising Biden and rejecting his “victory” for the fraud it was, they opted for carefully-chosen words which conveyed their concern and apprehension in a more circumspect fashion. The statement issued by the president of the US Roman Catholic Bishops' Conference, the archbishop Jose Gomez, stated: “we recognize that Joseph R. Biden, Jr., has received enough votes to be elected”, and: “We congratulate Mr. Biden and acknowledge that he joins the late President John F. Kennedy as the second United States president to profess the Catholic faith.”<sup>7</sup> Hardly words of ringing endorsement, but an endorsement nonetheless. The fact that Biden is only the second professing Papist ever in the White House should ordinarily have been cause for huge, smirking smiles and fawning praise from the bishops of America. But there was none of that.

Gomez told bishops on 17 November that a future President Biden, being a Roman Catholic, would present unique “challenges” for the “Church” of Rome in the US, especially regarding his policy positions which were at odds with Roman Catholic doctrine. “For only the second time,” Gomez said,

“we are anticipating a transition to a president who professes the Catholic faith. This presents certain opportunities but also certain challenges.” He said the bishops faced “a unique moment in the history of the Church in this country.”<sup>8</sup>

Gomez was being ultra-diplomatic. Unique challenges? Could he have been any more limp-wristed? In the past, Romish bishops would have come out and said categorically, “Joe Biden may call himself a Roman Catholic, but he is at variance with some of the most important Roman Catholic doctrines and practices. Unless he ceases to follow the path he is presently on, confessing his sins to a priest and obtaining absolution, he will be excommunicated, for at present he is certainly not living as a Roman Catholic.” But that was then and this is now. Times have changed. The Vatican, held in a Jesuit vice-grip ever since the accession of Francis to the papal throne, saw in Joe Biden a man they could manipulate and use for their own nefarious purposes. So, in the usual Jesuit fashion, they turned a blind eye to his transgressions and supported his plans for the presidency. Traditionalist bishops in the US did not like it, but out of their loyal obedience to their pope they would not rock the boat too much. Hence Gomez’ weak and muted statements about Biden’s presidency presenting “certain challenges” and being “a unique moment” in the history of Roman Catholicism in the US.

Gomez went on: “The president-elect has given us reason to believe that his faith commitments will move him to support some good policies. This includes policies of immigration reform, refugees and the poor, and against racism, the death penalty, and climate change. He has also given us reason to believe that he will support policies that are against some fundamental values that we hold dear as Catholics. These policies include: the repeal of the Hyde Amendment and the preservation of Roe vs. Wade. Both of these policies undermine our pre-eminent priority of the elimination of abortion.”<sup>9</sup>

Note again the way in which Gomez carefully chose soft words. First, he spoke of Biden’s “faith commitments” moving him to support some good policies. Again: in the past Biden would have been strictly censured. A man claiming to be a Roman Catholic but fighting against Roman Catholic doctrine and practice would have put him outside his “Church”. But now Gomez carefully referred to Biden’s “faith commitments”. What faith commitments would these be, exactly? The man is an arch-hypocrite, a liar, who shamelessly promoted himself as a faithful Roman Catholic during the presidential election race even though he well knows he is not.

Second, it must be understood that the term “conservative Roman Catholics” is fluid and certainly not all-encompassing. In many respects, “conservative” Romanists are just as liberal or “progressive” or even Marxist as can be. Take the issues Gomez referred to as Biden’s “good policies”: immigration reform, refugees and the poor, being against racism, the death penalty, and climate change. All these are beloved of liberals, Socialists and Marxists! But so comprehensive has been the brainwashing that even the majority of so-called “conservative” Roman Catholics – not to mention a great many other “conservatives” as well – have embraced these policies wholeheartedly. Take “immigration reform”. This means nothing less than large-scale illegal immigration into the US of Roman Catholics from Central and South America, as well as Muslims from various countries. It is a policy designed to flood America with Romanists and dangerous terrorists. Yet huge numbers of so-called “conservatives” now believe it is a good and necessary thing to “reform” immigration laws. There was a time when no conservative anywhere would have supported illegal or uncontrolled immigration. Or take the whole “climate change” myth. Begun by radical leftists, it is now believed and supported by many who would call themselves conservatives. They have been brainwashed. And the same holds true for the now-widely-accepted Socialist/Communist policies on refugees, the poor, “racism”, and the death penalty.

Third, only after speaking well of some of Biden’s policies – those which are today accepted by “conservative” and liberal/Marxist Romanists alike – did Gomez go on to criticise Biden’s support for abortion. He said Biden would support policies which are against some fundamental values Roman Catholics hold dear. Again: there was a time when anyone supporting abortion would not be considered a Roman Catholic. How times have changed! With the Jesuits running the Vatican, all kinds of people are now tolerated as Roman Catholics, no matter what they believe or practice!

Gomez added that Biden would also support “the restoration of the HHS mandate, the passage of the Equality Act, and the unequal treatment of Catholic schools.”<sup>10</sup> He could have added Biden’s pro-sodomite policy as well, for the man supports “same-sex marriage”, even though Rome’s official policy is that marriage can only be between one man and one woman.<sup>11</sup>

The HHS contraceptive mandate was initiated under Obama, and required all employers to supply coverage for contraception to their employees, including abortifacient drugs and sterilisations, under their healthcare plans. At the time this led to a number of legal battles for such groups as Roman Catholic universities and even an order of nuns. The Trump administration expanded true religious freedom in this regard, to the benefit of these groups; but Biden said he was going to reverse the protections which had been passed under Trump.

As for the Equality Act, this would add anti-discrimination protections for “sexual orientation” and “gender identity” to such existing protections as race, colour, and religion. In other words, sodomites, transgenders, etc., would be protected to the point where (for example) religious institutions and schools would have to grant men access to women’s bathrooms and changing facilities, or face prosecution. Gomez was correct when he said, “These policies pose a serious threat to the common good, whenever any politician supports them. We have long opposed these policies strongly, and we will continue to do so.” Perhaps they would – but what kind of religious institution is it that supports the political ambitions of a man so opposed to that institution’s doctrine and practice, even while blatantly lying about what a faithful Romanist he is?

Answer: an institution in the vice-grip of the Jesuit Order.

And so it is left to more “conservative”, traditionalist Romanists to try to do damage control, explaining their “Church’s” radical, pro-Marxist policies to non-Marxist Roman Catholic Americans, and to work around the evil policies of this Jesuit-supported man, Joe Biden.

Note again how circumspect Gomez was in speaking about Biden’s support for these things: “But when politicians who profess the Catholic faith support [such policies], there are additional problems. Among other things, it creates confusion among the faithful about what the Church actually teaches on these questions.”<sup>12</sup> It sure does.

But do the Jesuits care about this confusion? No – not if their own agenda is advanced. They will happily leave it to the rank and file bishops and priests to try to explain the blatant ignoring of official doctrine and practice on the part of the Jesuits and the Vatican. But they themselves will press on with their plans.

Gomez then said, “This is a difficult and complex situation.” That was an understatement if ever there was one! So what did he propose to do? “In order to help us to navigate it, [the bishops’ conference] will appoint a working group”. This would be to address policy by Biden which contradicts Roman Catholic teaching.<sup>13</sup> Imagine the incongruity of the powerful United State Bishops’ Conference having to actually appoint a working group to “navigate” the “difficult and complex situation” arising from the election of a supposedly Roman Catholic president! Just let that sink in for a moment. When Donald Trump – who is not a Roman Catholic – was president, the bishops did not have these “difficult and complex” problems to deal with; but when a supposed Roman Catholic enters the White House, they need a working group to “navigate” through these treacherous and difficult waters!

Oh, the irony.

Conclusion

If Biden is confirmed as president despite all the fraud and corruption of the 2020 US election, his presidency will be a Jesuit-directed presidency. Through him, the sons of Loyola will push ahead with their plans for the jesuitisation of the United States; a United States marching in lockstep with the New World Order envisaged by the Jesuits and all their internationalist buddies.

We are living through momentous and dangerous times indeed. America has now caught up with the rest of the world. For the true Christian, his faith, his hope, his joy and strength must only be in the Lord, not in politics or politicians. The world and the true Church are two absolutely opposite things. The world is under the devil's sway, and he is tightening his grip.

December 2020

---

Shaun Willcock is a minister, author and researcher. He runs Bible Based Ministries. For other articles (which may be downloaded and printed), as well as details about his books, audio messages, pamphlets, etc., please visit the Bible Based Ministries website; or write to the address below. If you would like to be on Bible Based Ministries' email list, to receive all future articles, please send your details.

---

Bible Based Ministries

info@biblebasedministries.co.uk

www.biblebasedministries.co.uk

This article may be copied for free distribution if it is copied in full

WORLDWIDE CONTACT FOR BIBLE BASED MINISTRIES:

Contending for the Faith Ministries

2941 Hayden Creek Terrace

Henderson, NV 89052

United States of America

BBMUSAorders@gmail.com

ENDNOTES:

1. Shaun Willcock, Trump and Biden: Courting the Roman Catholic Vote. Bible Based Ministries, 2020. Available as a free download on our website: <https://www.biblebasedministries.co.uk/2020/10/20/trump-and-biden-courting-the-roman-catholic-vote/>
2. "Pope Francis congratulates Biden on election victory in phone call." Catholic News Agency, November 12, 2020. www.catholicnewsagency.com.
3. "Jesuit magazine La Civiltà Cattolica praises Biden presidential victory." Catholic News Agency, November 19, 2020. www.catholicnewsagency.com.
4. "Biden tells Jesuit group he'll raise refugee ceiling to 125,000 annually." The Christian Post, November 16, 2020. www.christianpost.com.
5. Shaun Willcock, America's Alien Invasion: the United States is Becoming Roman Catholic. Bible Based Ministries, 2006. Available as a free download on our website: <https://www.biblebasedministries.co.uk/wp-content/uploads/2006/07/americasalieninvasionandrome.pdf>
6. "Archbishop Gomez: Biden will 'support policies' against 'fundamental' Catholic values." Catholic News Agency, November 17, 2020. www.catholicnewsagency.com.
7. "Pope Francis congratulates Biden on election victory in phone call." Catholic News Agency, November 12, 2020. www.catholicnewsagency.com.
8. "Archbishop Gomez: Biden will 'support policies' against 'fundamental' Catholic values." Catholic News Agency, November 17, 2020. www.catholicnewsagency.com.
9. "Archbishop Gomez: Biden will 'support policies' against 'fundamental' Catholic values." Catholic News Agency, November 17, 2020. www.catholicnewsagency.com.

---

10. “Archbishop Gomez: Biden will ‘support policies’ against ‘fundamental’ Catholic values.”

Catholic News Agency, November 17, 2020. www.catholicnewsagency.com.

11. “Catholic bishops to set up task force on Biden’s abortion policy.” WND, November 18, 2020. www.wnd.com.

12. “Archbishop Gomez: Biden will ‘support policies’ against ‘fundamental’ Catholic values.”

Catholic News Agency, November 17, 2020. www.catholicnewsagency.com.

13. “Catholic bishops to set up task force on Biden’s abortion policy.” WND, November 18, 2020. www.wnd.com.

NEWS

Biden's Jesuit DC parish council declares they won't deny Communion to anyone

Holy Trinity Parish is a bastion of fringe liberal Catholicism in an archdiocese whose leaders have exhibited complicit behavior regarding homosexuality, transgenderism, and abortion.

Joe Biden going to church

Joshua Roberts / Getty Images

Doug Mainwaring

Wed Jun 30, 2021 - 3:39 pm EDT

WASHINGTON, June 30, 2021 (LifeSiteNews) — The parish council at historic Holy Trinity Catholic Church, the Jesuit-run parish where President Joe Biden normally attends Sunday Mass, has issued a statement declaring that their church “will not deny the Eucharist to persons presenting themselves to receive it.”

The parish declaration is clearly a response to the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops' (USCCB) stated intention to draft a formal statement on the Eucharist addressing Church teaching on worthiness to receive Holy Communion, which will bear upon the reception of the Eucharist by pro-abortion Catholic politicians.

While a parish council has no authority over the distribution and conferral of the sacraments, the parish's Jesuit pastor's continued silence signals his agreement with the council's proclamation.

“We stand with our Archbishop, Cardinal Wilton Gregory, concerning the issues surrounding offering the Eucharist to American politicians,” begins the brief dispatch. The Washington, D.C., archbishop is one of several outspoken U.S. prelates who have decried the USCCB's move to protect the Eucharist from being received unworthily.

The parish council's declaration continues:

Cardinal Gregory serves as one of the most prominent ecclesiastical leaders in the current controversy and so it was therefore shocking and disappointing that his request to postpone the draft of portions of this document about the Eucharist received the minority of votes among the bishops. As Cardinal Gregory stated in the discussions leading up to the vote, “The strength of our voice in advancing the mission of Christ has been seriously weakened.” Sadly, the recent vote has caused considerable desolation among our parishioners as well as Roman Catholics throughout the nation.

Despite the protestations by Cardinals Gregory, Blase Cupich, and Joseph Tobin, the USCCB voted to move ahead with the effort by a wide margin, 168-55.

The foreignness of Biden's 'Catholicism' to faithful Catholics

President Biden adheres to a brand of Catholicism that is foreign to faithful Catholics. He has made it clear that he embraces abortion and sodomy — as Vice President, he conducted a same-sex “wedding” — and has promised to squash religious liberty and conscience rights via the Equality Act.

After Biden attended Mass at Washington's Cathedral of St. Matthew on the morning of his inauguration, Austin Ruse, the president of the Center for Family and Human Rights (C-FAM), wrote:

Joe Biden ate and drank his own spiritual death. That he received the Holy Eucharist from the hands of a Cardinal of the Church adds scandal upon scandal. One radio wag called it a [M]ass for Planned Parenthood. And so, it was.

And yet Holy Trinity Parish decided to continue the scandal.

Holy Trinity: The perfect parish for Biden's brand of 'Catholicism'

Located just outside Georgetown University's main gate and ensconced in the fashionable neighborhood by the same name, Holy Trinity is arguably the most effete liberal Catholic parish in the Archdiocese of Washington, drawing well-heeled Catholic elites — who deem their own neighborhood parishes too “conservative” or too “rigid” — from wealthy suburbs around the city.

It's also a place where someone like Father James Martin, S.J. — the chief promoter of the normalization of homosexuality and transgenderism within U.S. Catholicism — can count on receiving a standing ovation from a church packed with adoring fans.

In March, when the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith issued a statement declaring that the Catholic Church cannot bless homosexual relationships, the Holy Trinity “LGBTQIA+ Ministry” published a rebuke.

“Unequivocally, Holy Trinity affirms that LGBTQIA+ individuals have and always will have a valued place in our parish community,” asserted the parish's homosexual, transgender, intersex, and asexual supporters. “To our LGBTQIA+ friends, we want to stress that Holy Trinity is enriched by your presence, ministry and leadership.”

The most liberal parish in a very liberal archdiocese

Holy Trinity is a bastion of fringe liberal Catholicism in an archdiocese that for the last two decades has been led by ultra-liberal prelates who have exhibited varying degrees of complicit behavior regarding homosexuality, transgenderism, and abortion.

- Theodore McCarrick, formerly Cardinal Archbishop of Washington from 2001 to 2006, was stripped of the clerical state for crimes against minors and adults, with no possibility for appeal. McCarrick's most well-known victim, James Grein, described how McCarrick abused him for years starting when he was 11 years old. Other alleged victims included former seminarians and priests who have detailed the sexual abuse to which McCarrick subjected them.
- Cardinal Donald Wuerl, who led the archdiocese from 2006 to 2018, downplayed his predecessor's culpability and publicly pretended not to know about the many allegations against McCarrick. A Pennsylvania Grand Jury also found that while Wuerl was bishop of Pittsburgh, he allowed predatory priests to remain in active ministry, shuffling them between dioceses and parishes.
- Washington's current archbishop, Wilton Gregory — elevated to the rank of cardinal by Pope Francis last fall — as archbishop of Atlanta displayed an uncritical willingness to accept LGBT ideology in defiance of the Church's Magisterium. Soon after arriving in D.C., he tacitly affirmed the transgenderism of a "transgender Catholic" at a public event. He condemned President and Mrs. Trump's visit to the city's John Paul II National Shrine to pray on the occasion of Pope St. John Paul II's 100th birthday.

TOPICS

Catholic ChurchPolitics - U.S.

TAGGED AS

AbortionCatholicCommunion To Pro-abortion PoliticiansJoe Biden